

Emily Brown Law LLC – Attorney

- Do you enjoy problems solving?
- Are you interested in helping people resolve problems that involve their property, homes, and neighborhoods?
- Does work-life balance matter to you?

If so, Emily Brown Law may be a good fit for you. Emily Brown Law seeks a highly motivated attorney who is interested in real estate litigation and working in a small, collaborative office. The person who will excel in this role enjoys the detail-oriented aspects of property law, figuring out solutions to complicated problems, learning new things, appearing in court, working with people, and collaborating with coworkers. This person communicates clearly and effectively, possesses good computer and research skills, and creates engaging presentations when required.

Salary and Benefits

- Salary plus commission
- Opportunities for bonuses
- Paid time off
- Retirement plan

The firm primarily serves clients in York, Lancaster, and Chester counties and focuses on real estate litigation, land use, eminent domain, and landlord-tenant cases. We use technology to improve client service, reduce the number of in-person client meetings, and resolve cases as efficiently as possible.

The successful candidate must be licensed in South Carolina before beginning work and have some work experience. While not required, North Carolina licensure is a plus. Some experience related to the legal field or real estate is preferred.

To apply for this position, you must email your resume to emilybrownlawapplications@outlook.com.
